

I am against any expansion of LPFM that would give precedence to the use of local FM translators over the national signals such as K-LOVE.

K-LOVE and stations like it serve the local community with positive and uplifting music as well as news and public service announcements including information about news and events that are local to my area.

K-LOVE is listener supported radio.

I support K-LOVE financially because I know that more than just good radio entertainment is provided. K-LOVE has staff available 24 hours a day to counsel those in distress and I have heard many testimonials from those who were on the brink of suicide, but did not go through with it because of a song and the invitation to call someone who cares at any hour of the day. Few other stations could make such a claim.

If K-LOVE were to be displaced in my local area, by some other programming I don't imagine it could possibly benefit the community with the same type of positive and uplifting programming. Nor do I think that other programmers are likely to include 24 hour counseling for those who have reached the "end of their rope". My community would suffer a great loss if this happens.
